23rd Avenue Corridor Improvements Project

Project update: Expected return of two-way traffic in late February 2017

Weather permitting, crews expect to restore two-way traffic to 23rd Ave from E Union St to E John St, the final active work zone, as soon as late February 2017. All Phase 1 construction, from S Jackson St to E John St, is expected to be complete by spring. Read below for an overview of the work to expect between E Union and E John streets as crews finish constructing important safety, mobility, and infrastructure improvements on 23rd Ave.

Traffic reminders

- Northbound 23rd Ave will remain closed with a detour to Martin Luther King Jr Way from E Union St to E John St through late February 2017; southbound traffic will be maintained
- E Olive St will be temporarily closed at 23rd Ave (west side of 23rd Ave) for the next several weeks as crews demolish and pave the intersection and install a new traffic signal
- Through traffic will be maintained at 23rd Ave and E Madison St as crews continue demolition and paving work; expect ongoing changes to the traffic configuration on E Madison St as crews complete one area of work and move to the next

Businesses are open

- Don't forget to continue showing your support to the local businesses in the area during the final months of construction!

Driveway and sidewalk work continues

- Temporary driveway and sidewalk closures will continue as crews finish rebuilding the roadway, driveways, and sidewalks on 23rd Ave
- Please use caution and pay attention to sidewalk closures and pedestrian detours

Other upcoming work

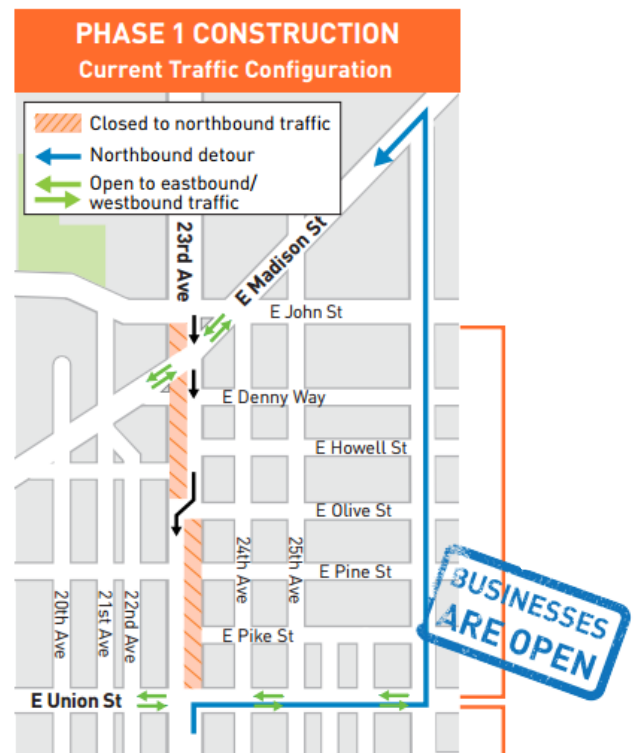

- Crews have a variety of other activities to complete above and below the street, including:
 - Completing electrical, lighting, and signal work
 - Installing new pole foundations, standing new poles to support the future electrification of King County Metro Route 48, and removing old poles and foundations
 - Planting new street trees and landscaping
 - Other final tasks as needed
- If you have any questions about the work in your area, please call 206-727-8857
- Thank you for your continued patience during construction

E UNION ST INTERSECTION PAVING WORK

- Following several weather cancellations, crews are still planning a weekend of demolition and paving work at the E Union St intersection
- Depending on weather, this work will take place November 18–20 or the first non-rainy weekend in December (excluding holidays)
- For the latest schedule, visit the website or call the hotline (above) or look for posted electronic message signs at the intersection
- Additional weekend work may be required
